Greenery - 'Magilla Perilla'

Magilla Perilla is commonly referred to as Magilla. Magilla produces a vibrant foliage of red, bronze and green on its strong stems. The mounding growth habit, heat tolerance and vivid colors makes this a great choice for landscape, baskets and mixed containers! Its colors will come to life through early Spring, Summer and Fall, right up until the first frost. Magilla is desired most for its vivid foliage, fast, vigorous growth, heat tolerance, and mounding growth habit for landscape, beds, baskets and containers. This is a great annual for early Spring and Fall with vibrant colors to brighten up any container or landscape. The Magilla Perilla prefers full sun but can tolerate some shade. They mature to about 24-36" tall and about 12-18" wide. Magilla grows best in average, well drained soil. Please remember, plants may need a little extra TLC and more consistent watering when in a container or basket!
